We've all come close to the infamous "Dawn of Destruction" event. A series of large earthquakes from all directions are triggered - but not each one as one entity. One group thinks the next one will be even grander. In the midst of this chaos, several strange beings appear out of nothing to try and claim the earth. Their purpose, if you will? Well... they want it. The city's largest taxi company has pulled its advertising from the CBC after protests began to erupt after an audio recording surfaced of a woman describing how the service's drivers were harassing passengers. The audio recording, called "Cab Driver: We're gonna rape your ass," appears in a story CBC News broke about taxi drivers in Halifax this week. But by Wednesday, CBC Media Communications said it'd decided it was more appropriate for the company to remove the ads.. In a statement, the taxi company said it had removed the audio recording "in breach of CBC policy," before retracting its initial claim that there had been no such recording. "I have no intention and no reason to believe that any customer who is affected by this particular piece of content would be harassed by these drivers, or to engage in inappropriate behaviour from the cab pool," the statement reads. "We are taking steps to ensure this does not happen again in the future." The statement also says several complaints about the audio recording has On PS4,..
